Privacy statement for the Kaleidoscope Hunter Children's Health Network

How does Kaleidoscope protect your privacy?

An individual's right to privacy as established under the Privacy and Personal Information Protection Act 1998 is respected by Kaleidoscope and protected. Kaleidoscope does not allow the publication of information that may identify individuals, or might potentially identify them.

What does Kaleidoscope do with personal information?

Kaleidoscope observes the information privacy principles set out in The Privacy and Personal Information Protection Act 1998 when collecting and dealing with any personal information.

Any personal information provided to Kaleidoscope will only be used to respond to enquiries and process donations. It will not be added to mailing lists or disclosed to any other party without the user's consent, unless required to do so by law. Personal information will be kept in safe custody, sufficient to prevent unauthorised access, and will be properly handled to ensure its safety, integrity and confidentiality.

Circumstances in which Kaleidoscope may be required to disclose this information to a law enforcement agency include:

- Communications which are defamatory, abusive, vilify individuals or give rise to a suspicion that an offence is being committed
- Unauthorised tampering or interference with files published on the Kaleidoscope website
- Breach the laws of the State of NSW or the Commonwealth of Australia
